Dulles to Report To Eisenhower On Incident

Will Discuss Shooting on Return Flight to Capital

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will fly to Maine this afternoon to meet President Eisenhower and confer on the latest U. S.-Russian plane incident.

The secretary planned to fly to the Dow Air Force Base at Bangor, Maine, a State Department spokesman said. Mr. Eisenhower is scheduled to fly back to the capital tonight.

The President and Dulles then will have more time during the return flight to discuss the shooting down of an American Navy plane by Russian MIGs last Wednesday off Alaska.

Russia claims that its plane exchanged shots with the U. S. Navy plane during the incident. The defense Department said the American plane did not return any fire after it was attacked.

Russia has offered to pay half the damages caused in the incident.

Originally, the President and Dulles had intended to hold an extraordinary night meeting to discuss the incident immediately after Mr. Eisenhower returns to the capital from his New England speaking-fishing tour.

Molotov Expresses Regret
The Soviet version of the plane incident was disclosed Sunday when the State Department made public the text of the memorandum handed Dulles in San Francisco Saturday by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

While admitting the incident could have been due to "a mistake," Molotov said Russia did not rule out the possibility it was "a result of the action of some representatives of the American command who are not interested in the prevention of this sort of incident."

But Molotov expressed "regret in regard to the incident" and offered to pay the United States 50 per cent of the damages. He insisted the U. S. plane was over Russian waters.

The United States reiterated its stand that the incident occurred over international waters. There was no loss of life but 7 of the 11 crew members aboard the Neptune patrol plane were injured, three by shell fragments.

No Broken Leg For Davy Crockett

Don't worry small-fry, Davy Crockett isn't laid-up with a broken leg!

The Daily Register received many inquiries today asking if there was any truth to the rumor that Fess Parker, the TV Davy Crockett, was in an accident over the week end that resulted in a broken leg.

A telephone call to Elizabeth-town and Cave-in-Rock failed to verify the story. In fact at both towns, where there are many people close to the movie company filming a Crockett story on the Ohio river The Register was told that "this is the first we have heard of it."

Mrs. Amos Hill of Cave-in-Rock, whose husband is furnishing boats for the movie company, stated Mr. Hill was working with the movie crew this morning and she was certain there was no truth to the story.

To Present Girl Scout Plans for Girl Scout Shelter Tonight

Final building plans for the shelter for the 350 Girl Scouts and Brownies at Lake Harrisburg will be presented tonight at a meeting of the Scout Board and the building committee.

The board will meet at 7:30 at the McKinley school. All leaders of troops as well as fathers of Scouts and Brownies are asked to attend. Since the building of the shelter is to be a community co-operative project, all other interested persons are invited to the meeting.

Hike Gasoline Prices Here

Major oil companies today hiked their gasoline prices, which have been about 10 cents per gallon below normal for the past several weeks. This morning, however, the price at various stations fluctuated. But, it was stated, it was believed the price would be stabilized by tomorrow.

Legislature Hopes to Complete Action for Adjournment Wednesday

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The Illinois Legislature came back to work today with high hopes of completing action on some half dozen pieces of important legislation and hundreds of other bills, in time to adjourn finally Wednesday.

A Wednesday adjournment would be one day ahead of the traditional June 30 closing date.

Important legislation to be given serious consideration includes:

About a dozen proposals to amend the 1953 Toll Road Act and place limits on the Toll Road Commission.

An administration-sponsored bill to set highway speed limits of 65 miles per hour in daylight and 55 miles per hour at night.

Bills to increase the state highway police force from 500 to 600 men, add corporal to the state police rankings, and permit the state police merit board to fix pay rates for state troopers.

A series of bills to bring all state personnel administration under the governor under a new code department with a professional director.

A permissive city utility tax of up to 5 per cent on the gross receipts of telephone, electric, gas and other utilities.

A Korean veterans bonus. The toll road amendments passed by the House can expect rougher going in the Senate where administration leaders admit they will try to keep the act intact as possible.

The House failed by one vote to pass a repeal of the Toll Road Act as a notice that it wants the investigating committee recommendations carried out.

Then it passed amendments that would require administrative review in the courts on appeals of Toll Road Commission actions, Senate confirmation of commission appointments by the governor, and financing of each toll road separately on its own merits.

Another proposed amendment would create a joint legislative commission to advise the Toll Road Commission and confirm appointments when the Legislature is not in session.

The Senate also has the personnel department bills, and leaders say these will require "a lot of straightening out" before passage because of many amendments attached by the House.

Seek Sergeant As Suspect in Triple-Slaying

DICKINSON, Tex. (AP)—Authorities today sought a husky, blond Army sergeant, about 24, with a crew haircut as the No. 1 suspect in the unsolved, triple-murder of a well-to-do Dickinson family.

Mrs. John McPherson, 44, her son, George, 12, and her mother, Mrs. J. N. Norman, 65, were shot and killed as they slept about midnight last Wednesday in two bedrooms of their suburban cottage.

But their bodies were not found until Saturday by Constable Earl Turner, who went to investigate at the request of a neighbor. The neighbor became alarmed at their continued absence and a peculiar smell.

Turner walked through an unlocked front door to find Mrs. McPherson's body, dressed in pajamas, in the master bedroom of her $30,000, ranch-style home. The boy and his grandmother were together in the bed of another room.

A bed in a third room, the boy's room, was rumpled. Deputy Sheriff Pete Ustry said the soldier, whom Mrs. McPherson took home "as a friend of the family" may have slept there. Ustry indicated police knew his name.

Mrs. McPherson's husband, the area supervisor of the Harry Edwards Drilling Co., Houston, had been away for three weeks on a job in Sulphur, La.

Ustry said a waitress in a Dickinson cafe said she overheard a telephone conversation of Mrs. McPherson with her mother late Wednesday. Ustry said she spoke of "bringing an old sergeant friend home for dinner."

Mrs. McPherson was quoted as saying the sergeant was a friend of her older son, Jack, 20, who presently is attending summer school at Clemson University in Clemson, S. C. But Ustry said Jack had no idea who the sergeant might be.

John Allen is Named First Southern Illinois Historian of The Year

John Allen was named as first Southern Illinois Historian of the year with unanimous acclaim of members in an audience of over 200 Friday evening at Fairfield. The action was taken in a meeting of Southern Illinois Historical society as guests of the Wayne County Historical society, President Wasson Lawrence presiding.

T. Leo Dodd, president of Eldorado Operation Bootstraps, read the citation and moved its adoption. Among the many who spontaneously seconded the motion was the former National Physician of the year, Dr. Andy Hall of Mt. Vernon.

Mr. Allen was honored "... because of his splendid work in promoting State Historical society tours in southern Illinois; because of his service as board member in state and Southern Illinois Historical societies; and, most of all, because of the great impetus he has given to popularizing southern Illinois history through scores of newspaper articles in a series entitled 'It Happened in Southern Illinois'."

Southern Illinois University Vice President George Hand held the audience with his address including his "Twenty Minute Brag on Little Egypt." He outlined a pattern of progress for southern Illinois.

Among those who gave brief talks were Louis Aaron, president of Saline County Historical society; Edgar Dukes, president of Edwards County society; C. C. Kerr of Cave-in-Rock, board member; Wayman Presley, secretary of Bald Knob Christian Foundation, and Irvin Pettman, author of "Echoes of the Red Man."

Benson Plans to Discourage Low Grade Wheat

Sec'y Announces 5-Point Program For Price Supports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson has announced a new plan to discourage production of low-grade wheat to reduce costly surpluses.

Benson announced the new plan Sunday on the heels of a vote by wheat growers in 36 states Saturday in favor of strict wheat controls.

The new plan calls for price support "discounts" on low-grade wheat suitable primarily for livestock feed. Under the plan, such grain would be supported at less than the average $1.81 per bushel price now anticipated on the 1956 wheat crop.

Wheat growers voted 77.5 per cent in favor of strict acreage and marketing controls on the 1956 crop. The government will support the crop at 76 per cent of the "fair" price parity. The 1955 average price guarantee was $2.06 a bushel.

Calling the surplus problem "an extremely serious one," Benson said the 1956 crop, plus surpluses, will give the United States enough wheat at the end of next year to meet all domestic and foreign demands for two years.

Benson's New Program
His new five-point program called for:

1. Price support "discounts" on designated varieties of wheat, especially "those suitable primarily for feed purposes."

2. Continued efforts to get congressional authority to broaden the non-commercial wheat-growing area. This area is not subject to acreage controls and farmers involved are guaranteed 75 per cent of the commercial area support price.

3. Legislation to exempt wheat growers from marketing quota penalties if all wheat they produce is used for feed or seed.

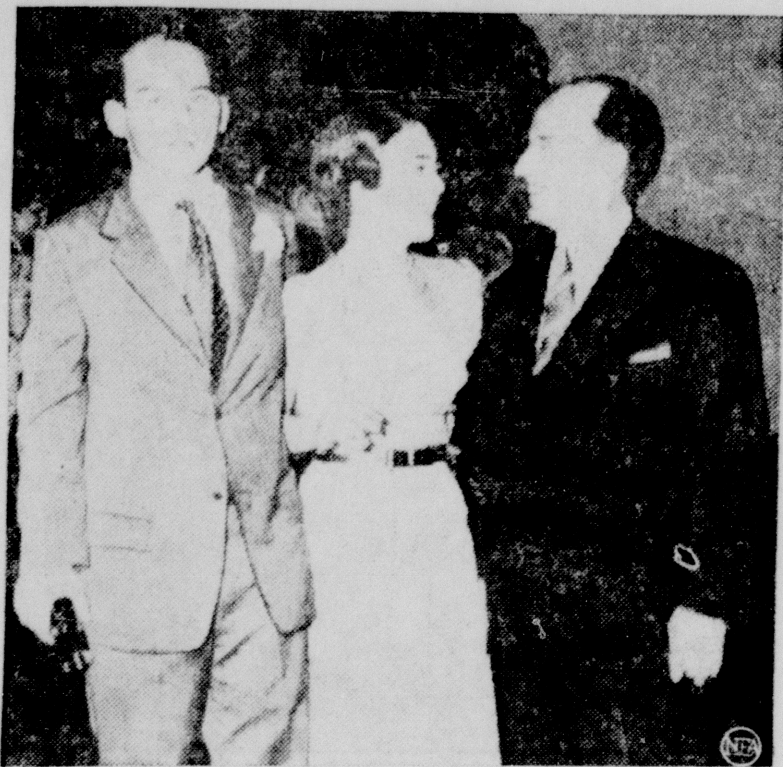

4. An extension of legislation calling for more durum wheat production, now in short supply. This type is used chiefly for spaghetti and macaroni.

5. Special programs to get wheat farmers to shift part of their acreage to hay and pasture.

Reaction to Vote

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.), top-ranking Republican on the Senate Agriculture Committee, hailed the farm vote. He said he thinks the support price on the 1956 wheat crop might be increased if farmers do not add to current surpluses next year.

Rep. Carl Albert (D-Okla.), Democratic House whip, said Saturday's vote proves conclusively that farmers favor government support. He said he believes the Senate should pass a House-approved bill to raise supports on basic crops to 90 per cent of parity.

New U. of Illinois President Favors Expansion to Meet Larger Enrollments

CHICAGO (AP)—President-elect David D. Henry of the University of Illinois served notice that the big school under his administration will expand its plant, facilities, and faculty and develop new techniques to cope with ballooning enrollment.

Henry, vice chancellor of New York University who succeeds at Illinois on Sept. 1, said Sunday that institutions such as Illinois must "learn how to cope" with large student bodies rather than "run away" from the problem by stiffening entrance requirements.

"I don't believe we should run away from the large numbers," Henry said.

The incoming president held a news conference at the university's professional college here after a two-day "social visit" to the Champaign campus. He said he would conclude his work at NYU by Aug. 1 and spend a few weeks at his northern Michigan retreat before assuming his duties on the Illinois campus.

No Sweeping Changes
Henry, who headed Wayne University of Detroit during its growth into one of the nation's largest urban universities, made these points:

1. In general, he plans no sweeping changes but will continue present policies and "start from there" with the university's "strong faculty."

2. No limit should be set on the size of the university, but it must have sufficient resources to educate the students attracted to it.

3. Attention will have to be given to the question of a four-year branch of the university in Chicago but "the first job ahead is to get a permanent home for projects now in progress and do it in a way to permit development in the years ahead."

4. He does not believe a program of granting state scholarships to students who enroll in private institutions, as proposed by some presidents of privately endowed colleges, could satisfy Illinois' higher educational needs.

5. He said universities must obtain the new buildings and facilities necessary to handle the flood of prospective students moving up through the elementary and secondary schools and develop more effective means of recruiting and keeping teachers.

6. He believes television will be "an important tool in tomorrow's education," particularly in closed-circuit TV lecture courses to handle larger classes, and is "very happy" that the university is experimenting in the medium.

7. He does not believe a state university should exclude students who rank low in high school scholarship because "there are too many examples of such students who finish near the top in college for us to be arrogant."

8. He will "not tolerate any Communists" on the University of Illinois faculty, believes "that matter already has been taken care of by board of trustees policy," and thinks that university faculties are "quite able" to appraise any individual cases that arise.

Hall Whiteaker Named President Of Prince Gardner
Hall W. Whiteaker, president, Clarence Whitman and Sons, Inc., New York, announced the appointment of Hall W. Whiteaker as president of the Prince Gardner company, subsidiary of the New York concern, at the annual Prince Gardner sales meeting held at the Park Plaza Hotel in St. Louis.

Mr. Whiteaker is a member of the Board of Directors of the Clarence Whitman company and at their last annual meeting in April was elected to the executive committee of the parent company.

Mr. Whiteaker, a former resident of Harrisburg, joined the Prince Gardner organization in May of 1929 as a salesman covering the New York and Pennsylvania territories. In 1933 he was promoted to sales manager for the company, and in 1949 to executive vice president in charge of sales.

Anthony Burniski, who has been associated with the Prince Gardner company since July 1925 and managed their plant at St. Mary's, Mo., was appointed vice president. Martin Thompson will assume Mr. Burniski's duties as manager for the St. Mary's plant.

Airliner Was Carrying U. S. Medical Officer

Report Chinese Fighters Manned By Soviet Fliers

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Red Chinese MIG jet fighters, which the Nationalist Chinese airforce said were piloted by Russians, today shot down a Nationalist jet patrol plane and raked a commercial airliner with machinegun fire.

The airliner, carrying U. S. Army medical officer Lt. John J. Goodrich, of Rayne, La., on a mercy mission to Matsu Island, landed at Nationalist-held White Dog Island and waited until dark to return to Formosa under Chinese Nationalist escort.

The pilot of the downed Nationalist jet was killed. But neither Lt. Goodrich nor any of the four-man crew of the chartered Foonshing Air Lines amphibian was injured.

The plane was to have removed an unidentified, ailing sergeant from Matsu Island for treatment on Formosa.

The Nationalist air force said that intercepted radio conversations during the two attacks showed that the eight attacking MIGs were entirely manned by Russians.

Orders from ground radio also were given in fluent Russian, the Nationalist air force said. Nationalist sources said recent intelligence reports also had indicated that the Red Chinese air force is run by the Soviets.

Crash Landing
The PBY pilot, Chin Quock Ming, a Chinese-American who lived in Hartford, Conn., for 10 years, said the Red MIGs made four passes at his plane firing each time.

The airliner made a crash landing on White Dog Island, one of the Matsu group. However, it was able to limp back to Formosa later escorted by four Nationalist jet fighters.

The airliner had many holes in its left wing.

The patrol plane shot down by the Reds was a T33 jet. It crashed into the sea and the pilot was lost, the Nationalists announced.

The MIGs attacked two T33 patrol planes after shooting up the airliner, which was under charter to the U. S. military assistance advisory group. The Nationalist planes did not report the Red fire.

It was the second incident within a week involving Communist planes and Americans. Soviet MIGs attacked a U. S. Navy Neptune patrol bomber off Alaska last Wednesday and forced it to crash land.

Today's attack came in an area of frequent skirmishes between Nationalist and Chinese Communist aircraft and warships. Nationalist patrol planes have often met Red MIGs on the coast, but this was the first reported incident involving a Nationalist commercial plane.

The Military Advisory Group in Formosa had aided and advised the Chinese Nationalists on formation of their armies and on the defenses of some of the off-shore islands.

Piercing Jet Age Barrier

Editorial — BY BRUCE BOSSART

It seems incredible, but news from the plane makers and airlines in recent days makes it clear that by 1960 we shall be entering the jet age in commercial air transport. We shall then be looking ahead to atomic-power planes and rocket aircraft.

Most of the forecasters have been saying that U. S. airlines would not be flying jet planes until the mid-1960's. Now we learn that Douglas Aircraft Company expects to be able to deliver a jet-powered plane, the DC-8, by 1959. Of course, airlines using big, fast and relatively new piston-engine planes, like the DC-7 and the advanced Lockheed Constellation, may be reluctant to switch over while so much life is left in such craft. But obviously the attractions of jet power will be enormously compelling.

The planners are talking of 4½-hour flights from New York to Los Angeles, 4 hours to Hawaii from the West Coast, and New York to Paris in 6½ hours.

Moreover, it is an established fact that jet planes will afford much greater safety than the quieter and freer of vibration in flight. And the airlines have long looked forward to the cheaper and easier maintenance involved in jet engines.

As if this were not enough, American Airlines has announced it is buying 65 million dollars worth of so-called turbo-prop planes for use on medium range routes up to 2,000 miles. These planes use a mixture of fuel and compressed air, as do jets, but they operate with a propeller as well as a turbine. The line will begin flying them in late 1958.

There is still more. For some time, the Boeing Airplane Company has been testing a jet called the 707, designed originally as an air force tanker but adaptable to commercial use. Boeing has not yet cleared away all the barriers to this development, but under the spur of competition from Douglas and Lockheed, also busy with jet experiments, it may be long.

For a time it seemed that the British, with their sleek Comet jets, were really going to steal a march on American plane producers in the jet field. But unfortunate mishaps to several Comet's took the plane out of the air and slowed up British progress in the long-haul field. However, John Bull is a jet jump ahead on the short hauls. The Vickers Viscount, a turbo-prop job, is in regular operation for Trans-Canada airlines. In addition Canada is scrapping its entire fleet of 60 piston-engine planes and replacing them with Viscounts.

America's producers, long the leaders in commercial aviation with their smartly designed piston-engine craft in use the world over, awoke to the challenge and spurred development.

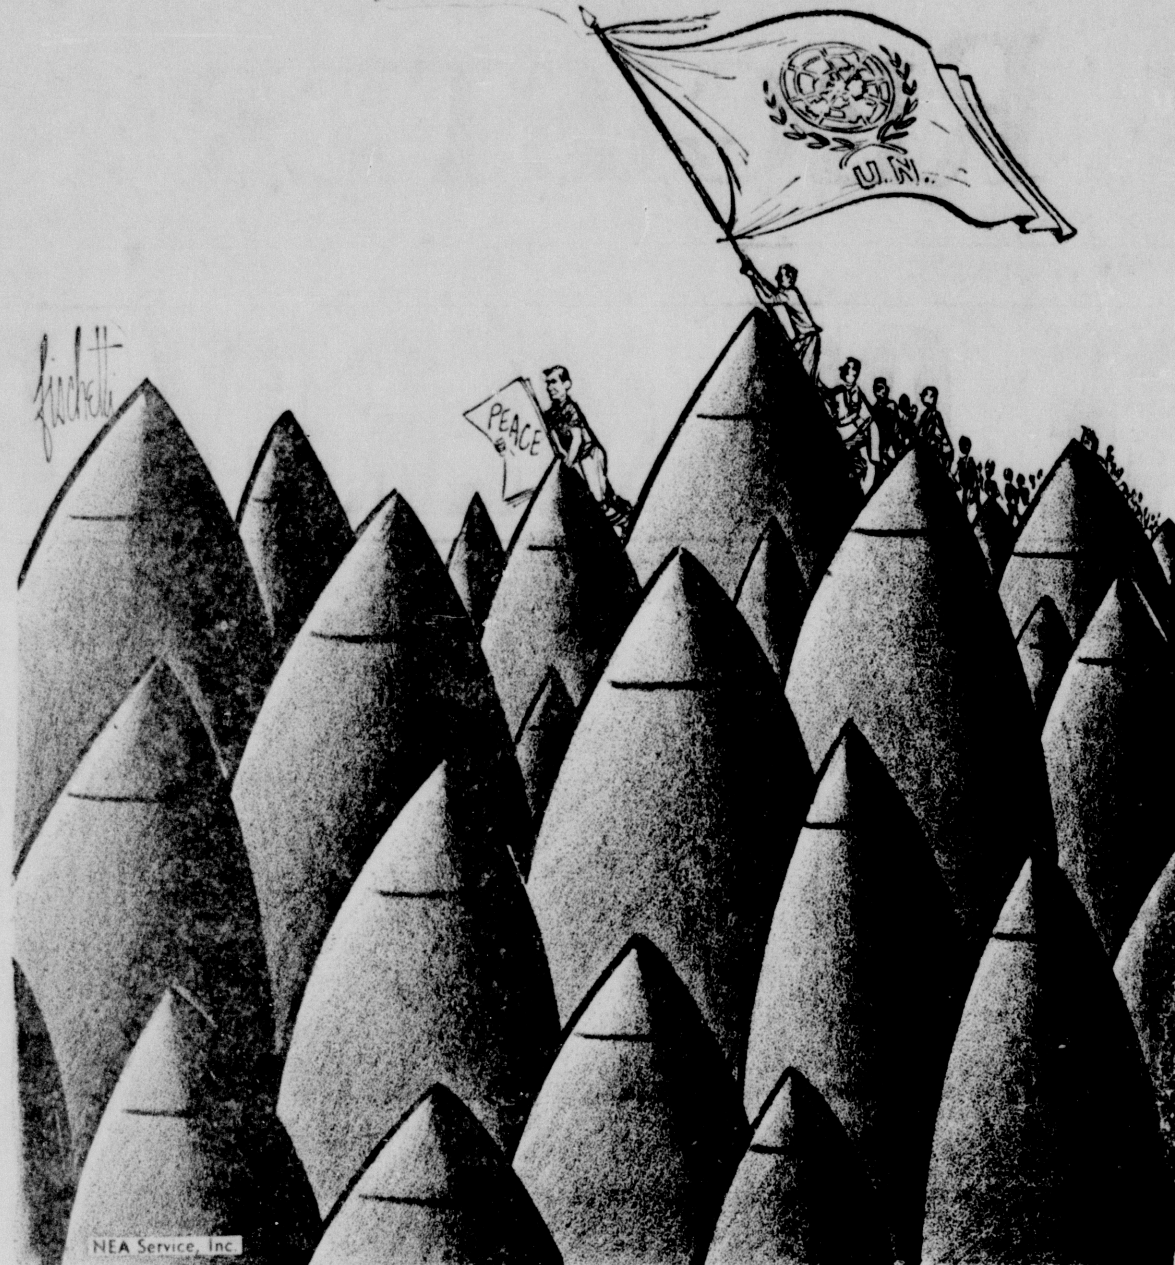

Both the makers and the airlines are to be congratulated for once looking attitudes which have not only brought America forward to the future in civil aviation, but have put us on the threshold of the atomic-rocket age.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

DREW PEARSON Says: Rockefeller Fortune "Threatened" In Penny-Ante Games; Russell Long Battles Fellow Democrats On Hell's Canyon; Operation Alert Timed As Peace-Talk Build-Up.

WASHINGTON. — Nelson Rockefeller, whose family is one of the wealthiest in America, was playing the penny-ante poker on the president's special plane en route to San Francisco. In the game with him were Congressmen Miller, Democrat of Oakland, Calif., Mailard, Republican of San Francisco, Younger of Ohio, and Scudder of California, also Republicans.

When the trip was over, Rockefeller was down seven dollars to his congressional friends. Remarkable Harold Stassen, also with the presidential party: "I am going to watch the stock market tomorrow morning. Nelson will probably have to dump a lot of stocks on the market to pay for his losses."

RUSSELL LONG DESERTS FATHER

Sen. Russell Long, Democrat of Louisiana, did his best to defeat his fellow Democrats during bitter closed-door meeting of the Senate Public Works committee when it voted last week on the one remaining big undeveloped power site in the United States, Hell's Canyon.

With all other easily developed power sites already built, Hell's Canyon on the Snake River is of crucial importance to Oregon, Washington and Idaho. The Eisenhower administration has favored its development by the Idaho Power company. The Democrats, with the exception of Russell Long, have favored development by the government, on the ground that rivers and works of nature belong to the people not private power companies.

Russell Long, whose father, the late Kingfish of Louisiana, battled against the power companies, has strangely voted with the power companies. When the Dixon-Yates project was up for debate last summer, Long astounded his colleagues by casting his vote against the Democrats and with the power lobby.

When the secret meeting of the Senate Interior committee opened last week, Long at first sat silent. Six Republicans bitterly denounced government operation of Hell's Canyon—including Millikin of Colorado, Watkins of Utah, Dworshak of Idaho, Barrett of Wyoming. The only Republican who did not take a definite stand was Kuchel of California. He did not definitely commit himself.

All the Democrats present urged that Hell's Canyon be developed by the government, except Long. He sat grim and silent. Finally, with Senator Murray of Montana absent in Geneva attending the International Labor Conference, acting Chairman Anderson of New Mexico pulled out a letter from Murray asking that the vote be postponed until his return. Anderson knew that a vote that day would mean a victory for the Idaho Power Company.

It was at this point that Senator Long finally jumped in to oppose his fellow Democrats. Knowing that the Republicans had a one-vote margin, counting his, Long urged that the vote be taken immediately, that they not wait for Senator Murray to return.

Senator Dworshak, Republican of Idaho, did likewise. However, they were overruled. Final vote on the last remaining big dam site was postponed for about a week. INSIDE THE PENTAGON

Here is the inside reason why Operation Alert was scheduled to test civil defense at the very time when the West is about to talk peace with Russia. The whole exercise was deliberately timed to build up public support in favor of the talks with Russia. The President and his advisers believed the spectacle of thousands of government officials evacuating Washington to avoid a make-believe hydrogen attack would demonstrate the wisdom of trying to avoid a horrible new war by talks around the conference table.

The exercise was originally scheduled to take place last year as part of "Operation Candor." The first atomic aircraft engine will be completed in ten months. It won't be ready to install in a plane that early, but it will be ready for ground tests. America's first atomic-powered submarine, the Nautilus, will soon cross the Atlantic entirely under water. It won't surface once. Its speed—over 25 miles an hour.

For a long time the military have wanted to run their own spy work instead of pooling it all under Allen Dulles and Central Intelligence. Now the National Security Council has ordered Central Intelligence to transfer some of its intelligence functions to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In fact, the Joint Chiefs of Staff already assigned five super-secret officers to direct the new intelligence work. WASHINGTON PIPELINE

HONOLULU (UP)—Army authorities at Schofield Barracks said today they were "bewildered" at charges made by the widow of an Army private that her husband was "harassed to death."

The charges were leveled in Chicago by Mrs. Anthony Reyes, 26, who refused to accept an autopsy verdict that her husband died of asphyxiation due to an epileptic seizure.

Mrs. Reyes said her 26-year-old husband "never had a touch of epilepsy or anything like it in his life."

Reyes died on June 23 while asleep in his quarters at Schofield Barracks here.

Before his death, his wife said he had written her claiming he was subjected to "cruel and unreasonable treatment" by his superior officers, and had been threatened with court-martial for minor infractions.

In Honolulu, Reyes' company commander, 1st Lt. Clarence H. Venable, said Reyes was a "good man."

"If anybody wants to investigate further, I have nothing to hide," he said.

Venable said Reyes had been in trouble only once. On that occasion, he said, Reyes disobeyed a non-commissioned officer and was restricted to base for a week.

Several squadron buddies of Reyes described him as a "happy soldier" and said he volunteered for more details than any other man in his platoon, according to a Schofield spokesman.

Asked about the threat of court-martial, Venable said he once ordered the men to make their clothes with their names and serial numbers. He said he posted a notice on the bulletin board that they could buy a rubber marker for $1.25, if they wanted. Venable said he knew of no trouble with Reyes over the order.

Mrs. Reyes had charged her husband was threatened with a court-martial for objecting to the required purchase of the marker.

When Reyes entered the Army, his medical record showed he was troubled with "shortness of breath, dizziness, foot trouble and soaking sweats."

Barkley Hopes To Visit Russia, Talk to Leaders

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Alben W. Barkley (D-Ky.) missed Joe Stalin on a visit 25 years ago and would like to drop in on Stalin's successors in Russia this summer.

"I'd like to go," the 77-year old Kentucky Democrat said in an interview, "but the trip is still in the wishful thinking stage."

The former vice president explained that his Russian trip depends somewhat on whether he attends this year's meeting of the Interparliamentary Union. The meeting is to be held in Helsinki, Finland.

"I've been told by the State Department that I can get in" (to Russia), Barkley said. He added, however, that he has not applied formally for a visa.

The senator said he would like to take his wife along, too, if Mrs. Barkley can be persuaded to take such a long plane trip.

"I'd like to see what has happened in 25 years," he said.

Barkley explained that he visited Russia for about six weeks in the summer of 1930—three years after he first became a senator. He went with a group of Americans—students, members of Congress and others—on a tourist seminar.

"They were anxious to have visitors then," he recalled. "We spent a good deal of time in Moscow. We travelled into the villages, too, and saw the collective farms."

Barkley said that Stalin was in control of the Russian government at the time of his previous visit. But Stalin was in Russian Georgia at the time and the senator did not see him.

Barkley was asked whether he would try to talk to the Russian leaders if his trip does come off.

"Well, yes, I'd like to talk to them if they are get-at-able," he replied.

Building Wreckers Get Odd Problems

CHICAGO (UP)—When bulldozers and wrecking crews move in to start a rebuilding program they can stir up a lot of strange problems.

According to the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials, such problems have included:

(1) The unsightly pattern of bricks, plaster and stairway outlines left on walls when adjacent structures are torn down.

(2) Rats settling uninvited in new locations when their old residences have been demolished.

(3) Birds who must find new roosting places when their fields become sites for new developments.

The housing association said the owner of the building with the unsightly wall apparently is not legally obligated to clean up the mess if it projects past his property line.

The health department in Washington devised a way of dealing with the rat problem. The redevelopment agency should notify health officials when a building about to be demolished has been vacated. Then exterminators can move in before the rats find out their cupboard are bare.

In Buffalo, N. Y., nature lovers derided the fact that a vacant site being leveled for a new low-rent housing project had been the home for many birds.

In Chicago, the land clearance commission was trying to come to terms with a holdout owner of property scheduled for redevelopment.

The commission got the owner's wife to agree to its price. Then, in a public hearing, the owner accused the commission of breaching up his marriage and threatening to name the slum clearance agency as correspondent in a divorce suit.

Tiddlywink Gives Girl a Bad Time

MILWAUKEE (UP)—A tiddlywink swallowed by a three-year-old Jeri Lyn Tischer, was retrieved from her esophagus by a surgeon at Milwaukee Children's Hospital.

An examination at the hospital where the child was taken immediately after the accident, failed to locate the coin-sized object. It was thought that the tiddlywink had passed into Jeri Lyn's stomach.

Her parents took her to the hospital again after she refused food for a week, although she would drink. An X-ray showed that the tiddlywink was lodged in her esophagus.

A long forceps inserted down Jeri Lyn's throat while she slept accomplished the extraction.

Jeri Lyn felt fine later, but she showed little enthusiasm for tiddlywinks.

In Memoriam
In memory of my mother, Mrs.
Anna Miller, who passed away
one year ago today.
Home is not home for Mother is not there.

Angels have taken her out of our care.

Dark is her room and empty her chair.

She has gone to that home so peaceful and fair.

Sleep, Mother, Sleep, your toils are over.

Sweet be thy rest, so often needed before.

Well have we loved thee, but God loved you more.

He has called you away to that bright happy shore where you will keep no more.

Safe in our Father's home above.
Prepared by our Savior's love.

Sadly missed by her daughter and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Saddler

Couple Honeymoons
By Auto After Wedding in Clouds

SILVIS, Ill. (AP) — A machinist and his 16-year-old bride, honeymooned by auto today after a wedding ceremony in an airplane that was circling 4,000 feet above ground.

Church-goers Sunday were treated to an aerial circus when Armon Eaney, 22, East Moline, and Glenda Kay Jordan, 16, Silvis, became man and wife in the clouds.

The Rev. G. P. Hertweck, a licensed pilot who is pastor of Bethel Assembly of God Church of Rock Island, performed the ceremony in a four-seater, 1947 model Stinson 150.

The bride's father, Glenn Jordan, owned and piloted the plane.

Death Has 3 Lives
by Brett Halliday

THE STORY: Private Detective Michael Shayne is in trouble because he unwittingly aided Jack Bristow, wanted for murder, escape arrest. Going to the scene of the crime, he meets a young woman whose actions lead him to suspect she knows something about the killing, or perhaps about Bristow.

VIII

The waiter set a platter in front of her with two open beef sandwiches smothered in steaming gravy. She grasped her fork and wolfed into the food, washing it down with long gulps of milk.

He ordered her a second glass of milk, and she emptied that and scraped her plate clean before another word was spoken between them. She sighed deeply and rested both elbows on the table and confessed with a little-girl grimace, "That's the first I had since a doughnut this morning. I never was so hungry in all my life. I just thought if I could wait until tonight and meet my husband like he promised, that everything would be all right. He's got plenty money," she went on proudly. "He'll pay you back, I promise you that."

"Is Jack in some trouble with the police?"

Shayne couldn't tell whether her involuntary start was from surprise or fear. "What do you mean, Jack?"

"Didn't you say that was your husband's name?"

"I didn't say," she told him with dignity. "Anyhow, it isn't Jack. It's... Pete. Peter Smith," she added bravely. "And he's not in any trouble at all. You know how cops are. A person's a stranger in town, he doesn't want to get mixed up in a murder. If he was hanging around waiting for me, would they believe him?" Her lips curled derisively. "They'd drag him right ten other planes filled with friends who are flying enthusiasts circled below the Stinson while the marriage vows were taken.

off to the house and work him over with rubber hoses and like that."

Shayne said, "I've heard about things like that, and I think it's a lousy deal. The thing is now, what are you going to do about meeting your husband? Sure you don't know any other place you might contact him?"

She shook her head decidedly. "I just had that one address. We fixed it up over the phone that I was to come, and the way he talked I thought he had a friend lived there. Neither of us have ever been in Miami before and he didn't know where else to say. I guess I'll just have to go back and hang around outside until he shows."

Shayne shook his head. "That won't be good. There'll be police stacked out all around there tonight."

"I don't know what else I can do," she said forlornly, tears creeping from her eyes again. "Why did it have to happen tonight? What'll he do when he can't find me?"

"Under the circumstances, I should think he'd wait until tomorrow morning when it won't look suspicious to be seen hanging around there... and expect you to do the same. Things will look better in the morning after you've had a good night's sleep."

"But I'm broke like I told you. I don't know where..."

Shayne said easily, "I'll stake you to a room for the night."

"I couldn't... not after all this..." She gestured toward the empty platter and glasses.

"Don't be silly. He made his voice sound fatherly and quite indulgent. 'You can repay me after you've found your Pete. No strings attached,' he went on briskly, glancing at the check and laying bills atop it. 'If my wife were wandering around a strange city, I'd hope some man would do the same for her.'"

She looked at him with shining eyes. "I do believe you mean it."

He got up and took her arm firmly to lead her out to his car. He got in and suggested, "Without any luggage, a tourist court is your best bet to avoid embarrassment."

"Whatever you say," she sighed and relaxed with her shoulder just touching his. "I was so frightened back there. I guess I just about went crazy. I couldn't think what to do. All I could think of was..."

"Pete," supplied Shayne. Mostly, he believed she had told the truth. The few lies she had told had been rather transparent falsehoods.

He turned his car in at the first nice-looking motel that had a lighted VACANCY sign, pulled up in front of the OFFICE sign and honked lightly. A man hurried out and came around to his side, saying cheerfully, "A cabin? Yes sir. Got just one left. You want to pull ahead to No. 6, you and the missus can take a look."

Shayne drove slowly to No. 6 with the man walking beside him. Neither he nor the girl said anything as the man turned on a light and they got out. He let her precede him into a large clean room with a double bed and shower bath, and he stopped in the doorway and asked, "Look all right to you?"

She turned slowly, biting her underlip and with a desolated expression on her pinched face, said, "I guess so."

"Seven dollars for the two," announced a brisk voice at Shayne's elbow. "You wanta come over to the office and register."

Shayne left his car in front and walked back to sign the register. "Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smith, Homestead, Fla.," and to write down the make and license number of his car. He paid $7 and received a key and the information that if they stayed past noon the next day they would be charged for another night.

IT HAPPENED IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS:

Saline Co. Teachers' Ass'n

By John W. Allen
Southern Illinois University

When Lewis E. York was first commissioned as County Superintendent of Schools for Saline county on March 23, 1897, he was the youngest person holding such office in Illinois. Press reports stated that he was the youngest one serving in such capacity in the United States. Perhaps this was true, for York was a very young man. In addition to being young, he evidently had reasonable daring. This is evidenced by a local innovation that developed during his tenure in the office.

In the early 1900's and, in fact, for many years thereafter, teachers in Saline county were poorly paid. Low salaries were not unique to Saline county, however. They prevailed over all southern Illinois. Several schools paid salaries as low as $22.50 a month. Many years later some rural schools levying taxes to the legal limits then fixed and drawing the $1.10 to $1.75 yearly allowance from the state distributive school fund for each person of school age in the district, could pay their teachers only $25.00 a month for the minimum six month term. Even at this low rate of pay, an occasional teacher would also agree to serve as janitor.

Teachers' salaries in southern Illinois were truly deplorable. About this time, however, a new force came to Harrisburg and Saline county. The miners there had succeeded in forming a miners' union that functioned. Some of the teachers of the county observed the workings of the new union and drew ideas from it. Why not form a teachers' union?

A small group eating at "Jack's Place" during the annual teachers' institute in August 1904 thoroughly discussed the proposition and decided to make the venture. In order to have reasonable hopes of making it successful, however, it would be necessary that they have the cooperation of Superintendent York. The plan was carefully explained to him. He proved agreeable and promised "reasonable" cooperation.

A plan for the Saline County Teachers' association was accordingly adopted, and publicly launched at the county institute. A minimum pay scale was established and the teachers signed a strong pledge to abide by it. The salary to be demanded would be fixed by the "scale committee." This committee arrived at the amount of salary for each school district by obtaining its assessed valuation from the tax books and multiplying that by the allowable tax rate for education.

It only remained now to make the plan effective and it was here that the county superintendent became the controlling factor. The method of certification for teachers in use at that time lent itself admirably to the purpose. Except for the very rare state certificate, the county superintendent was in full control of certification. It was he who made the questions to be used in the examination, conducted the examination, graded the papers submitted, and passed up on the personal character of the applicant for a certificate. Using some one or a combination of these powers the county superintendent could "reasonably" control the situation.

No Surplus Teachers

Using the powers he thus held, Superintendent York proceeded to reduce the enormous surplus of teachers in his county. He also discontinued the general practice of endorsing certificates issued by other county superintendents. A balance in the number of available teachers and of teaching positions in the county was shortly arrived at. Care was taken to see that there was no surplus of teachers.

As may easily be imagined, public reaction was often heated. Despite this opposition the plan succeeded. Some districts delayed many weeks in their employment of teachers but to no avail. They paid the designated salary or they had no teacher. The Saline County Teacher association won the contest and the first teachers' un-

Dr. Middlecoff Wins Western Open Golf Title

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Masters champ Dr. Cary Middlecoff has added another national golf title to his bag of victories—the hard way.

Middlecoff, off the early pace-setters in the $15,000 Western Open here, fired a brilliant six under par 29 on the next to the last nine and record tying 63 on the final round to edge Mike Souchak of Durham, N. C., in a thrilling stretch duel.

The popular Kiamasha Lake, N. Y., golfer, top professional money winner this season, compiled a ten under par 272 to take $2400 in prize money.

His nine under par 63 on the last round, put together with nine birdies, tied the Portland golf course record set by Ben Hogan in 1945 in the Portland Open and Jim Fier in the 1946 National PGA.

Souchak and Gene Littler, of Palm Springs, Calif., each needed birdies on the last three holes to tie Middlecoff.

The Durham star, a third day pace-setter, with 205, faltered and took a 69 for 274 total and $1800 in second place prize money.

Littler came in with a 67 final round to tie the Bob Rosburg of San Francisco at 275 and split $2600 each in third place money-wins.

Sam Snead, pre-tournament favorite shot a two over 74 and finished far back with a 283 in a six way tie for seventh place.

Billy Maxwell, the 1951 National Amateur champion from Odessa, Tex., who held a one stroke lead at the half way mark slipped into a third place tie with 280 with Marty Furgol of Lamont, Ill., and Ralph Blomquist of Glendale, Calif.

Harry Agganis, Red Sox First Baseman, Dies

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Harry Agganis, 25-year-old first baseman for the Boston Red Sox, died unexpectedly today.

Agganis, a native of Lynn, Mass., was the regular first baseman for the Red Sox until he was taken ill with pneumonia last month. He reported back for duty with the Sox but was sent back to Santa Maria hospital here, where he suffered a relapse.

Agganis broke into baseball with Louisville in 1953 after an outstanding career as a Boston university athlete.

He batted .281 for the 1953 season with Louisville in the American Association and joined the parent Red Sox last year, batting .251 in 132 games.

Agganis' death was unexpected, a spokesman for the Red Sox said. No cause of death was announced by the hospital immediately.

Pitchers Stage 'Hitting Picnic', Bat in 11 Runs; Cards Beat Giants Twice

By United Press
Pitchers in both leagues staged their own "hitting picnic" Sunday and the majority of them certainly had their fill at the plate.

Guys like Willard Nixon of the Red Sox, Alex Kellner and Ray Herbert of the Athletics, Vern Law of the Pirates, Jackie Collum of the Redlegs and Ned Garver of the Tigers got in some mighty fine licks Sunday as hurlers in both circuits slammed a total of 19 hits and drove in 11 runs.

Nixon exploded a three-run double in the seventh inning of the opener to break a 2-all tie and give the Red Sox a 5-2 victory over the White Sox. Boston then went on to win its 16th game in 20 starts by taking the second game, 8-2, behind Tom Brewer.

Kellner hurled one-hitter against the Orioles in beating them, 1-0, in the first of two games, but his second single of the contest drove in the only run in the sixth inning. Herbert drove in two runs in the nightcap to help the Athletics sweep the twin-bill, 5-2, and hang the seventh straight defeat on Baltimore.

Law was instrumental in ending Pittsburgh's six-game losing streak when he drove in three runs with a home run and a single to beat the Cubs, 5-4. But big Bob Rush gave up only five hits in pitching the Cubs to a 2-1 triumph in the second game.

Collum collected two of Cincinnati's 17 hits while beating Philadelphia, 16-5, in the opener of a doubleheader as Gus Bell, Stan Palys and Ted Kluszewski each homered, and Art Fowler gave the Redlegs a sweep with a five-hit 5-0 win over the Phils in the finale.

Like Collum, Garver also helped himself to two hits although relief pitcher Al Aber was credited with St. Louis in the nightcap.

Local Golfers Lose Close Team Match to Metropolis, Three Up

Harrisburg country club golfers entertained Metropolis in their first team match of the season Sunday, and the Massac county team won in close play—3 up.

The points were counted on a hole-for-hole basis, then one point awarded winners for each nine holes and for 18 holes.

Nineteen men came from Metropolis, making up nine foursomes and one twosome. Ira Stille of Harrisburg was low man for the day with a 65 for 18 holes.

The scores:
Roger Johnson, H. 39-38-77
Ira Stille, H. 31-34-65
Al Parks, M. 35-37-72

Eldorado Merchants Defeat Johnston City Nine, 2 to 1

The Eldorado Merchants, sporting new uniforms, defeated Johnston City Sunday afternoon on the Raleigh diamond, 2-1. A large crowd of fans was on hand to witness one of the best games ever played on the Raleigh field.

It was a pitchers' battle all the way between "Big Guy" Woolard of Eldorado and Don Wall, Johnston City southpaw. Woolard gave up only three hits, walked five and fanned four. Wall was touched for six hits, walked but two and retired eight on strikes.

For seven innings the game was scoreless. In the top of the eighth Johnston City scored on an error, a stolen base and a single.

Eldorado came back with two runs in the bottom of the eighth to win. Beasley led off and was safe on an error. He stole second and came home with the tying run on a double by Pulliam. Williams then singled Pulliam home with the winning margin.

Sunday Eldorado plays at Carterville and Monday, July 4, will be at home to Norris City.

There will be practice sessions Tuesday and Friday of this week, starting at 5:30 p. m.

Legion Trims Newburgh, Ind., Team, 15 to 5

The Harrisburg Legion nine downed a strong Newburgh, Ind., club Sunday afternoon by a 15 to 5 score as the locals exploded for eight runs in the sixth inning to overcome a 3 to 1 deficit and make a rout of what had been a pitchers' battle between Bill McNew of the Legion and G. Garrett of the Newburgh club. The game was played on the losers' field.

Newburgh started the scoring by pushing across a pair of runs in the second on two safeties and a miscue abetted by a sacrifice fly. The Legion tallied once in the fourth on safeties by Gully and Dallas and a fielder's choice. A safety, an error and an infield out gave the losers another run in the fifth.

The big sixth was opened for the locals as Gully led off with a single which was followed by Dailey's ace and topped by a long homer by Dallas. Romanosky was safe on a muff by the third sacker and McNew and Griffiths followed up with singles to score Romanosky. Odle then unlimbered a long triple to chase McNew and Griffiths over the plate and he scored as Gully then lined a homer into the left field woods. Dallas and Dailey added their second hits of the inning also before the side was retired.

The locals staged another big inning in the eighth after two were out to score six times. Odle singled and tallied as Gully rifled a double to right center. Gully tallied on Dailey's single and Dailey rode home on Dallas' double and he in turn scored as Logsdon drove a single to left. Romanosky then lined a homer into the left field woods to score Logsdon ahead of him and end the scoring for the locals for the afternoon.

Harold Gully and Bob Dallas led the Legion's 20-hit onslaught with four each. Both had a homer, a double and two singles. Dick Odle with a triple and two singles and Carl "Flash" Griffiths with three singles were close runner-up with Merle Dailey and Dick Romanosky connecting safely twice.

Frank Logsdon and Bill McNew picked up the other safeties. Hayden paced the losers' six-hit attack with two singles.

McNew went the route on the mound for the Legion and whiffed ten batters. Dick Romanosky was his receiver. G. Garrett and King toiled on the hill for the losers with Long doing the catching.

The Newburgh defense was some of the best seen by the Legion this season as the losers made many fine plays which robbed the local hitters of several extra hits.

Saturday the Legion will make the long trip to Menard where they will play the prison baseball club starting at noon. Sunday afternoon the Mt. Carmel Moose team is slated to oppose the locals at the park diamond.

Patty Berg Wins 5th Open

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Patty Berg, a 37-year-old redhead who has been a golf professional for 15 years, held an unprecedented fifth women's Western open crown today, and she said "it's a pretty good feeling when you're racing the calendar."

Miss Berg, who earlier this year won the title holders' tournament for the sixth time, matched par of 292 for 72 holes at Maple Bluff Country Club to win the Women's Western by two strokes over Louise Suggs, Sea Island, Ga., and Fay Crocker, Montevideo, Uruguay.

Miss Suggs and Mrs. Babe Didrickson Zaharias in the past have won four Western Opens each and until Miss Berg's par 73 finish Sunday shared that honor with her.

Miss Berg's prize gave her 1955 earnings of $8,140, still second to Miss Suggs, who made $650 for her second place tie to increase her winnings this year to $9,008.

Mickey Wright, La Jolla, Calif., who led the field for the first two days, took fourth money of $500 with a final 297 while Marlene Bauer, Sarasota, Fla., won fifth prize of $450 with 299. Wiffi Smith, St. Clair, Mich., was the low amateur with 305 total.

Hardest Scrambler Will Win American League Flag, Stengel Says

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA)—At the start of the season, the experts—with usual confidence—were quick to tell everybody that the American League race would be a brand new joke.

This was the year when the Indians would pull away.

The National was a different story, brother. There was a race! The Dodgers would be out to get hunk with the Giants, who had just about everything, including the great Willie Mays, running for them. The Braves had Bobby Thomson and Henry Aaron on two good legs. The Cardinals were bolstered by Ken Gayer and Bill Virdon. The Cubs had a second base combination and pitching. There was power in Cincinnati.

This was, of course, the signal for the Cleveland club to come back to the American League field in a hold-your-breath special.

Meanwhile, Brooklyn and its answer to Liberace, Jack Armstrong and Roy Rogers—Don Newcombe—went about the business of running away and hiding in the National.

It is the American League that has the race—a five-pronged one. "The club that scrambles hardest wins this one," says Casey Stengel.

"The funniest thing about this here business is that the Indians have lived off us," says the inimitable manager of the Yankees.

Coming into Yankee Stadium this trip, the Tribe held a six and two margin over the New York club. "Twist that around and you see where we'd be if it weren't for the Indians," says Ol' Case.

Stengel has not lost a season's series in six years in the Bronx. The best against him was the Indians' 11 and 11 last term. They easily could beat the old professor this trip.

Stengel considers the White Sox vastly improved.

"They added two pitchers, Dick Donovan and Harry Byrd and Sandy Consuegra turned out to be a pippin in relief," explains Stengel. "The White Sox have stayed up there with Minnie Minoos out and not hitting. George Kell, a corking hit-and-run man, has shaken the miseries in his back. That little Nellie Fox is a pest."

Marty Marion nominated Sherman Lollar for the most valuable player award and Stengel seconds the motion.

"Lollar was just a heavenly catcher with the Browns and when the Yankees had him," recalls Stengel. "Last year he hit no more than 244."

"Now he's batting .310 and calling smart pitches and catching double-headers."

THE WISTFUL HUNCH

plays by ear and lets his mind take a holiday

The HUNCH is a manufacturer who says advertising is an art—so why try to be scientific about it?

He bets on horses by the sound of their names, draws to inside straights, and always uses a putter when driving off a tee.

He's an amateur's amateur.

Fortunately, the HUNCH is a rare creature. Most advertisers realize that there is a degree of science in all human endeavors—and advertising is no exception.

Most manufacturers carefully weigh their markets, and watch competition closely. They time their advertising campaigns to meet seasonal and regional opportunities.

Naturally, they use newspapers. Because with newspapers they can pin-point any market and really cover any market.

Their national advertising starts at the local level because that's where success is founded.

All business is local...
and so are all newspapers!

Union Opens Contract Talks With Chrysler

DETROIT (AP)—Chrysler Corp. and the CIO United Auto Workers open contract talks today expected to result in agreement on a guaranteed wage plan similar to those already granted by Ford and General Motors.

Industry observers said Chrysler probably would accept a modified form of the plan which posed the major stumbling block in the path of GM and Ford negotiators.

Chrysler is just beginning to reap benefits from a gigantic campaign to regain some of its lost business. A strike at this time would cripple its effort, especially since Ford and GM have been assured of relatively peaceful relations with the union for the next three years.

The negotiators will seek to replace two major contracts covering 130,000 Chrysler workers concentrated largely in the Detroit area. Both the contract covering 100,000 Chrysler production workers and one covering 30,000 workers in the automotive body divi-

Woman Arrested on Traffic Charge, Carries $243,000

CHICAGO (AP)—Police have revealed a story of wealth, a woman and an illegal turn.

When officer Edwin Lukaszewski flagged down the woman on the traffic charge, she demanded to see his commanding officer. Lukaszewski took her to park police headquarters. There, police discovered the woman was carrying three envelopes containing $243,000 in big and small bills.

Park Police Chief George Otletwis said she said she was carrying the money, earned by her husband, because she had some business deals coming up. Police summoned the woman's attorney and a brother. She drove away with them and the cash was carted off in an armored car. The woman's name was not revealed.

Six Killed in Sabrejet, British Bomber Crash

BITTSBURG, Germany (AP)—Air Force officials attributed today to chance the collision of an American F86 Sabrejet and a British Lincoln four-engine bomber during night maneuvers of Operation Carte Blanche.

Six British crewmen were killed when the Sabrejet slashed into the bomber four miles above the earth in NATO's biggest "atomic air war" exercises. The American pilot parachuted to safety.

"It was a million-to-one chance that such an accident should occur," an Air Force spokesman said. "They had the whole sky in which to maneuver."

It was the fourth fatal crash in the giant air exercises.
